200 INJURED IN PANIC IN N. Y. SUBWAY

One Killed When Cable Blows Out and Fills Tube With Gas
700 MADLY FIGHT TO GET OUT
Blockade Worst in History; May Continue Today; Many Probes Started

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The worst accident in the history of New York subway system, the collision of two trains in the city's largest underground tunnel, today resulted in the death of one person and the injury of 200 others. The collision occurred at 10:10 p. m. when a passenger train from the city center collided with a freight train carrying a large quantity of gas. The gas filled the tunnel and caused a panic among the passengers. Many were injured and one was killed. The subway system is now closed and the city is working to clear the tunnel. The accident is the worst in the history of the subway system and it is feared that it may continue today. Many probes are being started to determine the cause of the accident.

May Be Same Today.
The management of the New York subway system is not yet sure that the accident was caused by a single factor. It is possible that the same thing may happen again today. The management is working to clear the tunnel and to determine the cause of the accident. It is feared that the accident may be the same as the one that occurred in the city of London last year. The management is working to prevent such accidents in the future.

Investigating Accident.
The city is now investigating the accident. It is hoped that the cause of the accident will be determined soon. The city is working to clear the tunnel and to prevent such accidents in the future. The city is also working to improve the safety of the subway system.

BIG AUDIENCE SEES PICTURES OF OLD MASTERS GLOW WITH LIFE AND BEAUTY

Society's 'Tableaux Vivants Bring Brain-Children of Famous Artists to Life; Production an Artistic Success

By Dr. A. W.
Confronted with the dimly lit, the high-children of a score of great masters looked down upon an enchanted audience last night from a massive frame that seemed like the threshold of the hall of centuries. It was as if the great masters had come to life and waved a magic wand and transported the multitude of hearers from the opera house where millions of miles hence to a land where puppets are cut out of life.

But the tableaux vivants presented to the audience last night were not the puppets of the old masters. They were the brain-children of the great masters, brought to life by the Society's 'Tableaux Vivants'. The production was an artistic success and it was well received by the audience. The tableaux vivants were brought to life by the Society's 'Tableaux Vivants' and they were well received by the audience.

MUST ELECT STEWART TO CHAIR AGAIN

Election Was Illegal; Members Had Not Taken Oath of Office at Time
Williams Pres. of Senate
Senate Committees to Be Announced Today; Number of Employees Out

DENVER, Jan. 6.—The decision today that Philip B. Stewart had been elected speaker of the house before the oath of office had been administered to the members, disclosed that, although all the other formalities attending the opening of the Twentieth general assembly had been observed, the organization was still incomplete. The members were of the impression at noon today that they were organized and ready for business. Then it was found, however, that the speaker had been elected before the oath of office had been administered to the members of the house. Mr. Stewart called upon Attorney General Farrar for an opinion. The latter ruled orally to the effect that the legality of the election was questionable, and advised the members of the house to vote again tomorrow, that there could be no question raised in the civil courts against laws that may be enacted by this assembly.

For achievements the Russians still hold the center of the stage in the great war drama that is being enacted in Europe and on the territory that forms the natural boundary between Europe and Asia—the Caucasus. In the latter region the Muscovites are following up and pressing hard the fleeing Turks near Sari Kamish and Ardahan, while far away to the northwest, in Bukovina, the Austrian crownland abutting Roumania, and still farther on, near the East Prussian frontier, fresh successes are chronicled for them by Petrograd.

Appellate Court Upholds Hyams in Copper Suit

Mexican Convention Meets; Nothing Done

CINCINNATI, Jan. 6.—The United States circuit court of appeals today handed down a decision reversing the finding of the lower court in the case of George M. Hyams of New York city against the Calumet and Hecla Mining company, and of the Isle Royale Copper company, and of George M. Hyams against the Calumet and Hecla company and the Tamarack Mining company.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 6.—(Via El Paso Tex. Jan. 6).—The national convention of the purpose of naming a provisional president and adopting a reform program met today at noon in the chamber of deputies. Most of the day was consumed in examining credentials and debating the question of admitting certain delegates.

Hyams filed the suit to enjoin the company from effecting a merger, stating the merger contemplated violated federal antitrust laws. The district court refused to act and dismissed the bill, whereupon Hyams appealed.

During the debate a number of armed soldiers entered the gallery and after a somewhat exciting scene were compelled to leave the chamber. It was decided that in the future neither delegates nor spectators might bear arms at the meetings. A majority of the delegates present today belonged to the Zapata army. Colonel Malin, who attempted to address the delegates was arrested on a charge of being the murderer of Captain, Colorado in the state of Chihuahua.

Hyams alleges that the Calumet company sought to secure control of the other companies when it was discovered that its supply of copper was running short and that its mines were almost exhausted.

Seven military trains will leave tomorrow bearing artillery of the brigade of General Anzor. Their destination was said to be Saltillo or Tampico. The force will divide according to strategic plans made by the war office here. A battle near the city of Pachuca was reported today in which the forces of Carranza were said to have been repulsed with heavy losses.

DEATH OF GARIBOLDI REVIVES WAR SPIRIT

Military Preparations Perfected; Italians Went to Join the Allies

ROME, Jan. 6.—The death of the French battlefield of Lieut. Bruno Garibaldi has caused a revival of public sentiment throughout Italy in favor of war, this feeling being augmented by the belief that the Italian military preparations now have been perfected. About 1,000,000 men are being formed into a reserve ready to be called out at a moment's notice. All the Italian artillery regiments have been provided with new cannon which are considered by Italian military experts to be superior to the guns of Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Special committees are being formed for the enlistment of volunteers. It is said to be the intention to form a body about 6,000 men strong, the force to be commanded by Capt. Rionotti (Garibaldi) who will have his sons as lieutenants.

It is estimated that at least 300,000 persons took part in the funeral of Garibaldi among them the French, British and Russian ambassadors and the Serbian, Belgian and Montenegrin ministers. From windows flowers were showered down upon the bier as it was taken through the streets while the people raised cries of "Long live Garibaldi!" "Long live France!" and "Long live Belgium!"

These shouts were intermingled with cries of "Down with Germany!" and "Down with Austria!" The police endeavored to restrain the foremost of the demonstrators and a scuffle ensued. The demonstrators sang the Garibaldi hymn and the Marseillaise. His Garibaldian veterans waved their flags. The police seized the flags but the demonstrators later succeeded in recapturing them. Several arrests were made.

Garibaldi's wife and her two sons the latter still wearing French uniforms received the body at the cemetery where a few appreciative speeches were delivered at the grave-side before the body was interred.

Later Garibaldi said that two of his sons already had fallen in France and that he in a few days would be the third to fall on that land which before dying he desired to kiss. He said he would keep his sons Sante and Enzo in Italy for a few days to comfort their mother and even, perhaps afterward as their place no longer was in Argonne under the French flag. He added that his sons could hardly resign themselves to a war in the trenches for the Garibaldians like to handle the bayonet.

KEEPING IN GOOD CONDITION Many people suffer from indigestion and constipation and do not know it. The stock, which had a face value of $71,555,000, was sold to a reorganization committee at $10 a share.

Russian Statement

PETROGRAD, Jan. 6.—The following statement of the general staff of the army in the Caucasus was issued tonight.

"At the end of November the bulk of the Third Turkish army was sent to the region east of Erzerum, preceded by two army corps besides a reserve corps near Harzen Kalah. "In conformity with the plan of Enver Pasha, the Third army was to proceed as follows:

"The Ninth and tenth army corps were to advance in the direction of Olti and form the offensive wing, whereas the Eleventh corps had orders to hold in a powerful organized position and to attract through a strategic demonstration the weight of our troops. In case the Russian troops had taken up the offensive energetically, the Eleventh corps had been ordered to fall back on the fortress of Erzerum, carrying along with it the Russian forces.

"The Tenth Turkish army corps was then to advance in two columns, the first including one division, proceeding toward Id by the Olti-Chal valley. The second, two divisions strong, was to advance on Ardost through the Sevan-Chal valley. The Ninth corps was to take the offensive the interval between the Tenth and Eleventh army corps.

"Our troops in the region of Olti checked with great courage the Turkish advance, despite the numerical superiority of the enemy and through several counter-attacks inflicted heavy losses. "In the meantime we detected a strong Turkish column, reinforced by Mussulman rebels, which was advancing from the Panjovurest and falling on the souzhebnak passes in the direction of Ardahan. The garrison which we had left at this point, after holding out for 17 days, fell back a little to the east.

Capture Standard. Having received reinforcements, we attacked, January 1, the Turkish forces concentrated at Ardahan and inflicted upon the enemy a complete defeat. We captured the flag of the Eighth infantry regiment, a part of the Constantinople garrison.

During the development of a subsequent action we discovered that the bulk of the Turkish forces—that is to say the Ninth and Tenth army corps—were taking the offensive against Sari Kamsh. This mountain road and steep passes buried deep in snow. The Turkish troops were abundantly provided with provisions and war material. The enemy had planned the operation, relying on the sympathy and help of the natives who previously had been influenced by Turkish emissaries.

"The task of our troops consisted in holding on the front important forces of the enemy and at the same time in offering a resistance strong enough to check the Ninth and Tenth corps in spite of the extraordinary difficulties of this: in spite, also, of the rigors of the winter and the necessity of fighting in passes of mountains rising 18,000 feet and covered with snow, our valiant troops after a fierce battle extending over 10 days, fulfilled brilliantly the exceptional task which had been imposed upon them.

They repulsed the frantic attacks of the Turks on the flank and on the front and at Sari Kamsh enveloped and almost annihilated two Turkish corps. They captured one of these corps with its commander, three divisions generally with their staffs, a number of officers, thousands of soldiers and many guns, rapid fire and horses.

Fighting in Poland. "The fighting was very fierce on the principal front and, of course, necessitated a change in the grouping of our forces in regions of secondary importance. We brought certain detachments nearer our front.

We have not yet ascertained the extent of our losses. The result of the enemy still continues.

The official statement from the general staff in the Mlava region (Poland) issued tonight follows:

Our troops January 5 made a sudden attack against the village of Rudawa to the west of the road from Piszew to Mlava. Four thousand of the enemy, who occupied this village, were almost entirely bayoneted. We also took some prisoners.

On the left bank of the Vistula the local cannoning and rifle fire are continuing. Fighting of secondary importance is proceeding in the region of Boudzin, and near the Mogheli farm.

KITCHENER REVIEWS RECENT OPERATIONS

Report to House of Lords Contains Nothing of Particular Importance

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The house of lords met today, a month earlier than the house of commons, chiefly to hear from Lord Kitchener a review of the military operations for the six weeks since parliament was prorogued. While the speech of the secretary for war contained nothing of a sensational character and little not already known, it was listened to with rapid attention by a distinguished gathering of peers and peeresses, members of the house of commons and public men.

The peers, as usual, were in their robes of office; but, beyond this, the scene was lacking in the usual color, for, of the long rows of peeresses in the gallery virtually every one was in mourning for some relative killed at the front.

Lord Kitchener read his speech from a typewritten document and referred briefly to the operations in every sphere, laying particular emphasis on the Turkish defeat in the Caucasus; the Austrian defeat in Galicia, and what he considered even more important—"the severe check to German aspirations in Poland."

The war secretary spoke, also, of the "noteworthy progress" made by the French east of Rheims and in southern Alsace; the extraordinary achievement of the Serbians, which he characterized as "one of the brightest spots in the military operations during December." Gen. Louis Botha's "masterly handling" of the situation in South Africa, the advance of the Indian army in Mesopotamia and the successful campaigns in East Africa and Kamerun, the German colony of West Africa.

Plenty of Trained Officers. He paid tribute to the smallest of the allies, Montenegro which he said, "advanced into Bosnia and captured important positions in the face of considerable Austrian opposition."

Speaking of the anxiety felt at the beginning of the war at the death of officers, Lord Kitchener declared that all vacancies had been filled and there was now a considerable surplus. Although the training of the men had been carried on under the worst weather conditions, a great deal of extremely good work had been done during the last month he said.

Before the adjournment of the house several of the lords brought up the question of enemy aliens not interned in England whom they considered a menace. The Earl of Crewe speaking for the government, promised to give the subject further consideration.

Clean Up Vice Dens, Then Talk Child Labor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Until the northern states have cleaned up their vice dens and Sunday theaters, they have no right to complain that children under 14 years old are permitted to work in the cotton mills of the south. This view was set forth today by David Clark, a Charlotte, N. C. editor before the eleventh annual conference on child labor.

Mr. Clark charged that representatives of the National Child Labor committee had misrepresented facts concerning the south. His charges were directed at Dr. A. M. McKelvey, southern secretary of the committee. Dr. McKelvey made a spirited denial. Secretary of the mill owners at North Carolina, he added, violated the law of child employment.

Rules for War Stamps on Conveyances of Property

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Regulations to govern the placing of stamps on conveyances of real property in payment of the war tax were issued tonight by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborn. The tax is 50 cents on deeds that amount to over $100 and less than $500 with 50 cents additional for each $500 or fraction over $500.

The regulations make it plain that where the consideration is nominal, the tax must be computed upon the actual value of the property conveyed, liens deducted, and the executor becomes liable for the penalty if the proper amount of stamp is not affixed.

The commissioner announced that while a register of deeds is not expected to investigate where he suspects violation of the law, he should in such case notify the proper revenue collector. A quickie deed is not subject to the tax, nor are oil leases and mining leases which convey no title. Deeds to cover gifts in a family or from an individual to a municipality are not taxable.

The internal revenue bureau also issued further regulations affecting the payment of the war revenue stamp tax on bills of lading. It announced that, although it is the duty of the shipper to pay the tax, the carrier may pay and is jointly responsible in case any such bill is not stamped.

10,000 FRENCH PEASANTS ON MEUSE ARE STARVING

Belgians Divide Their Scanty Food Supply With Them; Nation Will Be Wiped Out Unless Relieved

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium, returned to London today from a trip of inspection of the work being done by the commission in Belgium. In a statement issued this evening, Mr. Hoover said:

"An appalling situation has been presented to the commission with regard to the French peasantry in the valley of the Meuse, just south of the Belgian frontier where there are 10,000 persons absolutely without food. Our investigation showed that a large number of deaths already had occurred from starvation.

"Despite the shortness of the ration in Belgium our Belgian colleagues agreed that we must share the last crust with these people. We therefore, sent them food out of our limited Belgian stores."

Mr. Hoover also issued a report on the commission's work in Belgium. "It must be borne in mind," he says, "that our problem falls into two phases. The first is to provide bread for those who are able to pay for it, and the second to supply all food for those who are destitute. Exactly, the former comprise some 5,000,000 persons. On the basis of the minimum ration we are providing they require about $2,500,000 worth of bread per month.

The recovery of this money and the exchange problem as yet have not been solved and are causing us the greatest concern.

The destitute comprise about 1,400,000 who are being wholly fed by the public canteens. The cost of supporting them is about $2,500,000 per month for which we are depending on the charity of the world.

All Belgium is now on a ration of 10 ounces of bread per day, rich and poor alike. When there is that much of a ration available, the rich pay the cost price, the destitute nothing. In his report Mr. Hoover pays tribute to the assistance in the work of distribution rendered by the Germans, declaring the occupying army has been extraordinarily scrupulous in its observance of the agreement that none of the foodstuffs imported by us were to be consumed by them.

The report closes as follows: "Despite the volume of food which has been placed at our disposal, we can provision only until February 15. Great has been the generosity of the American people. It is well to bear in mind that if we fail after that date the world will be faced by the greatest tragedy it has yet witnessed in the possible extinction of an entire nation. Strenuous as the efforts that we, our governments and countries have made, they cannot for one moment be relaxed if this gigantic catastrophe is to be prevented."

Arrest of Mercier Causes Sensation

LONDON, Jan. 6.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company from Amsterdam says that telegrams received there from Berlin assert that the arrest was an unparliamentary blunder caused consternation in Catholic circles.

The leaders of the Catholics, it is stated, openly express the opinion that the arrest was an unpardonable blunder, and that if the religious were in session the members of the centrist party would demand an explanation from the chancellor.

Berlin dispatches say that messages received from Rome declare the arrest of Cardinal Mercier has aroused indignation in Vatican circles and that it is expected Pope Benedict will ask for speedy redress.

Reuters Amsterdam correspondent says: "The arrest of Cardinal Mercier has created a profound sensation throughout Belgium. According to reports received here the Germans also arrested the printer of the cardinal's pastoral letter, who until recently was the burgomaster of Malines, but released him on bail."

It is stated that the reading of the pastoral letter had been prohibited. Several priests were arrested for reading it. Fugitives from Antwerp says that all the rectories around Malines and Antwerp are guarded by sentries."

ROME, Jan. 6.—The reported arrest of Cardinal Mercier by the Germans at Brussels because of a pastoral letter which he would accept the position.

WHAT THE PRESS AGENTS SAY

"THE GREAT SECRET"

At the Empress today William Fox presents "The Great Secret," a three-reel masterpiece by the White Star company. When Guy De Maupassant wrote "The Diamond Necklace" he turned out the greatest work of fiction of all time, a story that authors and critics do not hesitate to call the most perfect ever produced.

This marvelous tale has been arranged to the screen and retitled "The Great Secret." There are three thrilling leads of dramatic action and tense situations leading up to a terrific climax—the most touchy ever put into a picture. A sensational story perfectly pictured, Edwin August and Neta Gerber stars of the first magnitude, are in the leading roles and are supported by a company of exceptional ability. The scenic investiture has been worked up with the fidelity and attention to detail for which the White Star productions are especially noted, altogether it is one of the most striking films ever produced. You should not fail to see it. Fox comedy reels accompanying the great photoplay, they are of the joy bound and new in this territory, but promise to live up to the reputation of their name "Joy" and bring laughter and joy to your hearts and minds.

"THE WHIP"

Coming to "The Burns."

This production is without doubt the largest, from a spectacular standpoint, that has made the tour from coast to coast. "The Burns" management have received assurance that the presentation will in every way be identical with the production given at the great Drury Lane theatre in London.

The size of "The Burns" stage and the appliances rendered it possible for this production to be brought to Colorado Springs. It comes direct to this city from Salt Lake City, so that Colorado Springs will further have the honor of being the first city in Colorado to stage the play.

Owing to the lengthy production, the curtain goes up promptly at 8 o'clock and, seeing that the story of the play is fully outlined in the first act, everybody should be seated.

Considering the great expense that has to be incurred in bringing this stupendous production to Colorado Springs, it is gratifying to notice that the price here will be the same both nights as have been obtained in the largest cities of the country.

Apart from the fact that the public will have an opportunity of seeing this great Drury Lane play with all its accessories, it is felt that public pride alone should help to make this engagement a notable one for "The Whip" company, for by that means the city cannot help but receive favorable advertising.

It is certainly going some that a city of the size of Colorado Springs should be able to secure so large an attraction. It will not be possible for the grand old come out even unless they pay to a full house both nights, and that is one consideration the money that a circus can take away in one performance, there ought to be no difficulty whatever in filling "The Burns" to standing room only both nights, when it is considered that there is, in connection with the play, the following special features: Nine horses, pack of four pounds railroad wreck, automobile rescue and a variety of other entertaining features all crowded into one night together with an enlarged orchestra.

Some of the most remarkable realistic stage pictures ever seen on any stage are shown in "The Whip" on Wednesday and Thursday 13 and 14. That these will be of unusual and exciting character is apparent from the fact that 13 complete stage settings are required for as many scenes, a dozen huge treadmill and five electric-driven panoramas are necessary for the race scene, while real tracks, locomotives and rolling stock are essential for the sensational collision. Two trains are shown running at full speed in plain sight of the audience. The rear car is detached from the first train and comes to a standstill at the entrance to a tunnel, directly in the path of the following express. The latter crashes into the car and is shattered into a mighty wreck, lit up by lurid flames and shrouded in a pall of steam from the bursted boiler of the overturned locomotive. The massiveness of the production makes necessary five special cars for the transportation of the scenery.

The coming of "The Whip" is of interest in that it marks the first successful attempt in years to revive a form of entertainment—melodrama—that languished into obscurity, also in that the presentation comes as the most lavish and spectacular effort in the history of melodrama.

"The Whip" is a story of a high-class sport, centering about a crack

For the convenience of the public arrangements have been made to receive orders by mail but all such reservations must be taken up before 5 o'clock on Saturday next.

For prices and other information see the advertisement in this and succeeding issues. Keep your eyes on the press column, so that you may be fully posted on the massiveness of the production.

OPERA HOUSE VAUDEVILLE

This afternoon at 2:30 opens one of the biggest vaudeville shows ever witnessed in this city. Five big all-star feature acts selected from the world's best talent—Hayden, Burton and Haydn offering one of the funniest acts on the stage will astonish you with their fast line of talk and comedy singing. To beautiful young ladies, better known as Black and White, in a very pretty acrobatic act, will certainly prove impressive, as these are the first lady acrobats to appear here at this popular playhouse this season. They are winning much favor all over the Marcus Loew circuit. Canaris and Obo, presenting a big of Parisian magic, will certainly be welcome because everyone likes a good magician, this is the only pair of magicians on the Loew circuit and they are bound to please both young and old. Bobbie and Dale, that clever pair in a comedy singing and talking act, will keep you roaring from start to finish. Last but not least, Big Bill Robinson, the world's famous black-face comedian will entertain you for 15 minutes with something entirely new, which heretofore has not been seen or heard in Colorado Springs. This all-star collection of acts along with the latest Pathé Daily News of current events and the most popular two-reel dramatic feature obtainable is undoubtedly the biggest and best attraction seen here in many months and no one should miss seeing this fine after-noon bill. Three shows daily, matinees 2:30, evenings 7:15 and 9:15, all seats reserved.

"AS YOU LIKE IT"

This queen of comedies was undoubtedly suggested to Shakespeare through the popularity of one of the first published novels, "Rosalind," by Thomas Lodge. From the same writer Shakespeare got many of his descriptions of sea voyages. This comedy belongs to the wonderful middle period of the poet's life, in company with "Twelfth Night" and "Much Ado About Nothing."

Briefly the plot is once more made to revolve around Rosalind, the daughter of a banished duke is herself suspected of treason by a jealous uncle who sends her packing from his court. Left alone with her cousin, the

BAD COLD? GET RELIEF AT ONCE WITHOUT QUININE

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours

You can end grippe and break up a severe cold either in head, chest, body or limbs, by taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, influenza, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Pape's Cold Compound—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

Usurper's daughter, Celia, she imparts to her the desire to seek her father and together the two princesses, accompanied by the faithful court fool, Touchstone, wander away to seek the rightful duke in the Forest of Arden. By a coincidence so dearly loved by all dramatists, a young man named Orlando, who had aroused the usurper's anger by overcoming the prize wrestler, is also banished, and he, too, strays to the convenient forest. Here the Princesses, disguised as peasants, encounter the youth Orlando. Orlando, detecting the slightest resemblance to Rosalind, banishes the girl-youth and drags so many feminine philosophies out of him that he is quite prepared long before the play is over to declare his love for the real Rosalind should she at that moment suddenly appear.

The Ben Greet Players will present "As You Like It" at the Burns theatre, January 15, in the Y. M. C. A. Star course. Tickets are now on sale at the Y. M. C. A. building.

VIDA SUTTON SINGS

BEGINS TONIGHT

At the Antlers, on Thursday and Friday evenings, and Saturday afternoon, of this week, Miss Vida Sutton of the new Toy theatre of Boston will give a series of dramatic programs under the direction of Theodore Fisher, the well-known local manager. The term "dramatic readings" has so many unhappy suggestions through its association with lyceum courses and entertainments of only moderate interest (to put it as mildly as possible) that Miss Sutton's offerings here, while coming under this general heading, it should be made clear, are of a very different sort.

The series of monologues entitled "Her Point of View" which is the first of the series she will offer here, is her own composition. It is little bits out of the lives of European women of many countries and in their own words in London and Paris, where Miss Sutton gave "Her Point of View" before returning to America, where it was hailed as the most interesting of the Paris Daily Herald said of it, "That it throws a searchlight on the entire feminine movement." The Queen, London, called it "a brilliant and original method of illustrating social studies."

As her second offering, Miss Sutton will give a reading of Bernard Shaw's new scientific social satire, "Pygmalion." The third program will be a lecture-recital on "Drama and the Common Life." This will be a searching analysis of fundamental social forces and foibles, with illustrative readings from such noteworthy plays as Galsworthy's "Justice" and "The Pigeon," and Knobel's recent play, "My Lady's Dress," in which Henry Boland has scored so great a success in New York this winter.

Miss Sutton's association with the New theatre of New York, the "Little Theatre" of that city, and her recent engagement for the Toy theatre of Boston, which opens next month, give ample assurance that her portrayal of the various characters in the plays and monologues will be highly artistic. Seats are now on sale for the three programs at Whitney & Greenwood's.

MISS MOLFE RESIGNS

INVENTORS TO BLAME FOR WAR GERMAN GENERAL GIVES VIEWS

FIELD HEADQUARTERS OF THE GERMAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Dec. 12.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press by courier to Holland)—This important section of the long western battle line is guarded, at this writing, by the army of General von Heeringer to which belongs the credit of the first heavy fighting and the first considerable victory of the war—the defeat of the French at Muehlenhausen, Alsace, on August 10.

Each day brings its artillery duel, sometimes ferocious, some times almost perfunctory. The infantry in the advance trenches carry on a constant operation of tunneling and trenching, punctuated with minor but frequently sharp contacts. This week has seen no heavy fighting and the lull has enabled the correspondent of the Associated Press, who has been a guest of the headquarters since the great part of the week, to have many conversations with General von Heeringer and almost every evening hear his after-dinner talks on the new lessons and methods of this war, the initial campaign in Alsace, the comparative bravery of the various armies, the noteworthy achievements and incidents

now. In trenches we are using with most remarkable effect not only hand grenades but large mines containing a great quantity of explosive and thrown by a special type of gun.

During the correspondent's stay at headquarters a report was brought to the general one evening that the French had endeavored to push forward a large mine from their trenches into the German trenches at this point only a few yards distant. The Germans opened a bombardment upon it with their hand grenades the moment it appeared above the breastworks and succeeded in exploding it before it reached the danger zone for them.

Work of Hand Grenades. The correspondent was shown a number of these hand grenades. They are about the size of a baseball and are bound to short wooden paddles, making them very handy to throw. Usually they are provided with fuses which the user lights from a match or a cigar. A supply of these are kept in readiness in every trench. When patrols go out between the lines each man usually carries two in his belt, and storming parties sent to take a of the war, and on the use of the automobile, the aeroplane, the telephone and wireless telegraphy in modern warfare.

Value of Modern Methods.

This war with its army of millions and its battle fronts of hundreds of miles would have been impossible without these modern adjuncts. General von Heeringer believes, and those seeking to place the responsibility for the colossal struggle may, he thinks, if they wish, place a portion of the blame upon the shoulders of modern inventors.

Physically, General von Heeringer is far from the generally conceived idea of a German commanding officer. Sixty-five years of age with silky beard, mild eyes, a pleasant voice and a courteous consideration for visitors and all with whom he comes in contact, it takes the gray field uniform, with the black and white ribbon and the iron cross upon the breast, to reveal the man, who, as war minister, drafted and put through the reichstag the billion-mark levy for the increase in the army last year, and who as commander of that army, hastily concentrated in the first 16 days of mobilization, broke up the French invasion of southern Alsace and drove the invaders back upon Belfort.

Practice vs. Theory.

As general staff officer, as Prussian minister of war, as army inspector and prospective commander, General von Heeringer has been, in close touch with the modern theory of war but he admits that all did not come out as the experts had expected. "Take the laying out of trenches for example," he said. "The first principle to be observed in laying out trenches, according to our ideas before the war, was to secure an extended field of fire as possible, so as to force an attacking enemy to advance a long distance under the fire of the defenders. Now we have learned that the first principle is to have them concealed and protected from artillery, even if the field of fire does not extend more than 50 yards before the trenches. That is enough, with modern weapons, to stop any attack. In a number of places along the front our men and the French occupy opposite slopes of the same ridge with the crest of the ridge between them, so that neither side can see the other. In the other days it would have been thought that the side seizing the crest could drive out the others but now neither side dares show a head above the crest."

Learn Other Lessons.

Another lesson we have learned is in regard to the occupation of cities in advance. We now march our columns around the city instead of through it, sending only light, reconnaissance parties into it until we have established that it is clear of the enemy.

Hand grenades, we find, are the best weapons for street and house to house fighting. A couple of hand grenades thrown into a house occupied by the enemy will clear it more quickly than anything else and with far less loss of life in the use of the bayonet. Our men all carry grenades village or town equip themselves liberally with these weapons.

General von Heeringer was asked whether the first months' fighting had settled in any way the question of the superiority of dense or extended lines for attack. English and French reports in the early days of the war having described the German soldiers as charging in almost solid formation, and incurring heavy loss. The general intimated that there was a great deal of legend in the story, and that, in order to get the men forward under heavy fire it was necessary to advance in such successive rushes rather than in dense lines, owing to the effect of the modern infantry weapons.

British Better Soldiers.

"Which of the allies has the best troops?" asked one of his hearers. General von Heeringer had only praise for both British and French. The French were stiff, hard fighters, but he seemed, like most officers at the front, to think that the British soldiers were the toughest opponents. The correspondent has found German officers of all arms united in this opinion of the excellence of the British personnel and material. The German infantryman has a wholesome appreciation of the war in which the Tommies attack to their trenches to the last. The German artilleryman praises the work of the British guns. The aviators who have had to do with both French and British flyers say that the Britons are more enterprising than their French colleagues and that the British biplane is superior in many points to all other aircraft.

The clothing and equipment of the English officers and soldiers is considered most ideal. Evidence of this is given by the number of German officers of higher grades considering themselves lucky when they can put their shoulder straps and buttons on the brown overcoat of an English private.

Deeds of Bravery Plenty.

Deeds of bravery in this war are too common, the standard of courage among the supposed overcivilized races of Europe too high, the general believed, to draw any comparisons or to select any special exploit as the bravest. What had caught his fancy most, however, was the action of the untried regiments of young troops thrown into the fighting in Flanders and greeting their baptism of fire in what is considered to be the most vicious fighting of the war who went in singing "Deutschland über Alles," and bore their part with the enthusiasm of youngsters and the steadiness, under heavy losses of wounded comrades, life at headquarters is one of steady work, notwithstanding the comparative inaction of the army for several weeks. The officers of the staff and General von Heeringer has a large official family of perhaps 50 officers—mess together in two large connecting rooms of the interesting old French building used as headquarters. General von Heeringer has the middle seat at a long table with places for 24 and an animated exchange of news and opinion is always in progress, sometimes on military topics, sometimes on affairs at home often on lighter topics, such as the taste in art of the preceding occupant of the building, with whose selection in pattern and ancient and modern pictures the

WHEN HEADACHY TAKE CASCARETS FOR THE BOWELS

Tonight! Open your bowels and end headaches, colds, and sour stomach

Get a 10-cent box now. You're bilious! You have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill-tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that most disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels are cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean, stomach sweet, and your head clear for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken. Adv.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Luster at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing tea and Sulphur is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Weeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Rinsed," thus avoiding a lot of mess.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Weeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so easily. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Adv.

German officers scarcely can be said to agree.

Telephone Communication.

The telephone central, connecting the general staff with the emperor or field headquarters with Berlin, with the headquarters of the other armies and with his own subordinates down to the simplest noncommissioned officers commanding a squad in the foremost trench, is in an adjoining room. During the correspondent's stay at headquarters the commanding general was almost never interrupted at table by reports or communications. The business of running an army has been so systematized that the commander may take his meals undisturbed by military routine.

The food is plain and simple, soldierly to almost the same degree as that of the men in the trenches. "His excellency," said one of the staff, does not encourage table luxury. Food is supplied by the townspeople upon requisition and he wishes to make the burden to them as light as possible.

For a time," he added emphatically, "we had trouble in getting even the table wine required, the stock having apparently run out but we later found supplies—where do you think? In soldiers' graves. A French shell which fell into one of these, a valve a little tick of the inhabitants to bury such supplies, round up a mound of earth above them and set up a wooden cross at the head of the supposed grave."

"Have you seen everything you wished?" asked General von Heeringer, in a farewell conversation. "We have no secrets, you know, except such as are locked up in the biscuits of our commanders. I gave instructions that you should be given every facility for your work. In return, please do nothing. Let the people of America know that we are not Hung and barbarians."

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made

—Lily Prepared in Five Minutes. Cheap but Unequalled.

Some people are constantly annoyed from one cough or cold to another with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it. Get 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma. This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes a full pint enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 34 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds. (Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for 2 1/2 ounces Pinex) and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded upon return of this preparation. LOCAL BANKS HAVE MORE MONEY THAN LAST YEAR

Deposits at Beginning of 1915 Show
Nearly Million-Dollar Increase
Over Preceding 12 Months

There is $550,000 more in the banks of Colorado Springs now than there was a year ago, according to the reports of the clearing house association. Last year the statement in January showed total deposits of $10,231,238.18 and this year the report showed that there is on deposit here $11,081,018.03. According to Colorado Springs financial men the outlook is especially promising, and there will be money available for several new business projects here this year. In the opinion of one banker of prominence, the country is suffering from lack of confidence, not of money.

FIRE AND POLICE HEADS MAKE DECEMBER REPORTS

According to the monthly report of Fire Chief P. D. McCartin, the department responded to 32 alarms during December, two of which were false. The total loss was $445.90, of which $1.50 was insured. The total amount of insurance involved was $40,000. The monthly report of Chief Stark of the police department showed there were 127 arrests during the month. Magistrate C. R. Manning fined 58 in police court, the fines amounting to $202.

WINTER NIGHT CLUB TO HEAR FERRAND JAN. 21

President of University of Colorado
Will Speak at Next Meeting on
"Public Health"

President Livingston Ferrand of the University of Colorado, former secretary of the National Health Association of America, and widely known as an authority on matters pertaining to health, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Winter Night club, Thursday evening, January 21, at the Antlers hotel, according to the announcement given out yesterday by W. W. Postlethwaite, secretary of the club. The subject for the lecture will be "Public Health." Dr. Ferrand succeeded President J. H. Baker as head of the University of Colorado in January, 1914.

Thursday afternoon President Ferrand probably will address an open meeting of the Associated Charities, taking for the subject of his talk, "Tuberculosis."

CAMPAIGNS FOR CHARITY UNUSUALLY SUCCESSFUL

Reports for December Show $2,382
Contributed; Many Families and Individual Cases Assisted

At the monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Associated Charities yesterday afternoon, reports of the Christmas and December work of the organization were given by Agent W. F. Worcester. The campaign to raise money for the indebtedness of the association was highly successful, according to Mr. Worcester, $2,382.35 having been contributed. The publicity given to the cases on the Associated Charities "White List," was instrumental in bringing relief in three days to all the cases but one. This was taken care of two days later. A total of $442 was received from individual contributions.

The Christmas work consisted for the most part in investigating the many cases which became known through The Gazette Santa Claus letters, and in getting the name of deserving families for philanthropic purposes. In no case was it found that any family had received more than its allotted share. The work of investigation was more difficult this year than ever before according to Mr. Worcester, on account of the large number of names supplied by The Gazette for verification. Aside from this routine work there were several families whose names had been omitted by the various charitable institutions and individuals to be taken care of by the association. Fifteen families were supplied with coal and candy, 11 families were given Christmas dinners, presents were sent to the children of 11 families, and shoes were supplied to 11 families. A carload of coal which was given by the street car company, was distributed among 31 families.

The general work for the month ending December 21 was harder than any previous month, in Worcester's opinion. In three items, groceries, coal and rent the expenses ran ahead of other years. Lack of employment has been largely instrumental in causing these conditions, said Worcester.

'GO TO PRAYER MEETING' PLEA ANSWERED BY 1,000

Campaign to Arouse Greater Interest in Church Affairs Opens With Satisfactory Results
The "go to prayer meeting" campaign was inaugurated last night in practically all of the churches in Colorado Springs and Colorado City. The services were conducted by members of the gospel teams and it was estimated that more than 1,000 people attended the meetings in both centers. Sixteen teams took active charge of the work. The general subject for the talks was "prayer." The meeting will be continued next Wednesday night. Subjects for the next three Wednesday nights are "Faith," "Bible Meditation" and "Personal Work." The campaign is part of a general movement to interest the people in the work of the churches, and is being conducted by the Ministerial association in cooperation with the gospel teams.

Municipal Theater in Time, Says Miss Sutton But Public Must Appreciate 'Better Plays'

By F. R. W.
Patrons of the drama in Colorado Springs are particularly fortunate these days. It has been less than two weeks since Dr. Richard Burton, president of the Drama League of America, addressed the Winter Night club on "The Tired Business Man and the Theater," in which talk he analyzed theatrical conditions of the day outlined the ideal and pointed out how the theater is actually breaking away from the set standards and naturally drifting into that state which a few short years ago was considered but a dream of the idealist. Now we have Miss Vida Sutton, an active worker in the Drama League and one of the foremost dramatic readers and lecturers, who is to give a series of three readings at the Antlers beginning this afternoon.

These two practical realists the expression is used not without considerable thought) are doing an immense amount of very good work. We are particularly impressed by Miss Sutton because she is personally reaching the people, whereas the large majority of her coworkers are attempting to accomplish the same results by a more roundabout method—and, unfortunately, are more or less failures. The keynote of Miss Sutton's success is that she accepts the viewpoint of the public and, primarily, entertains, doing her preaching and teaching simultaneously and in such a way that it will be accepted unconsciously. Usually the people come to like her plays—which are the pure plays and look for opportunities to hear more like them. When the people have been reached in sufficient numbers to make the demand large, the supply will jump to meet it, the types of today will go and the ideal will have been reached.

Why Miss Sutton Has Succeeded.
Being interested in this particular side of the theater and wishing to become more or less acquainted with one actively in the work, we called on Miss Sutton yesterday at the home of Miss William F. Richards, 1225 North Cascade avenue, where she is visiting during the week. After an hour's chat we realized the reason for this young woman's big success. First of all she is unusually attractive—and this is a most important matter and one that cannot be overlooked. Unless the picture is pleasing to the eye, the ordinary mortal will not place himself in a receptive mood, and all is lost. Then she has a pleasing manner of expressing herself, and, lastly, she has "presence," that somewhat indefinite quality which is so seldom noticed in more than a passing way unless it happens to be lacking. That means catastrophe. With these qualities the possibilities of one before the public are almost unlimited.

"Yes, I am working in conjunction with the Drama League in a way," Miss Sutton said in response to the question, "I am a member of the Stagecraft Players, a company backed by the league and appearing in a number of little one-act plays of the type the league sanctions. We play only a short season, opening in the Little Theater, in Philadelphia, and playing at the new Toy theater in Boston and in Brooklyn, New York, Washington and a few of the larger eastern cities. We probably won't come west for some time."

"The idea of a program of one-act plays, I believe, was taken from the Princess Theater, in New York. Holbrook Blinn, however, uses plays with thrills, while we are presenting the true type of the higher drama."

Concerning the Higher Drama.
The expression, "higher drama" is rather confusing. In our opinion it does more to hinder the work of the Drama League and other similar organizations than almost any other thing. People think plays of this type are what are now-a-days commonly called "high brow." As a matter of fact they are not. There have been scores of good plays of the higher type produced by New York managers during the last few years and many of them have been among the greatest successes. "Pygmalion" that delicious satire on English social conventions by Bernard Shaw is one—and it is the greatest success of the present season. Incidentally Miss Sutton will read it here tomorrow.

"I've always been interested in the drama," Miss Sutton explained in telling how she entered her present work. "At Chicago university I studied dramatic literature and sociology and, wishing to learn more of the theater, went on the stage. My first experience was in the New Theater company of New York. The venture failed and, there being no other companies of like nature to go into, I turned to reading."

During the last two years Miss Sutton has been abroad studying the drama and social conditions in the European countries. One of her recitals here will be based on this trip, in the form of long dialect readings. "Dramatic readings, of course, can never take the place of the enacted play. Plays were written to be acted, but I do believe one should read and study most plays before seeing them."

Municipal Theaters Eventually.
Here Miss Sutton almost repeated the words of Dr. Burton. She too, holds his belief that the great deficiency is the small number of really good companies presenting the high type of drama. If all companies they are, and no one wants to go on the "road," Miss Sutton looks forward to the permanent companies in each community—the municipal theater idea—but believes the people must first be taught to fully appreciate the better plays.

She displayed unusual interest in the plan to bring the Forbes-Robertson company to Colorado Springs next autumn. It will show whether or not the people of this city will support a good company playing the high type of drama," she said.

We would like very much to see Miss Sutton on the stage. She, in our opinion, is the true type of what the theater will be in America when our theater has reached the high standard of St. Louis, where it is a most perfect. But unfortunately it can't be at present. Colorado Springs is decidedly off the theatrical map, even for present-day types. To say nothing of the ideal companies. And Miss Sutton will not appear in an organization other than those of the nature of the Stagecraft Players.

We were about to suggest something on the history of the drama, with special reference to type to be followed by a little discussion of the theater in Germany, where the permanent company plan has reached a high degree of development, when old friends dropped in. Soon the theater had been left behind and we were dissecting the war situation at a luncheon of the people, instead of the theater. One numerous other topics, and, altogether, it was a most enjoyable time, and for some reason or other we weren't bothered so much as once by thoughts of the rest of the planned interview. However, it would be decidedly interesting to let Miss Sutton's views on these other most important phases of the drama be with us when it acquires a national character—or in about six, 10 years.

RAILROAD COURTESY

THE progress of the railroads along the path of enlightenment in the last ten or twelve years has been remarkable. When Federal regulation was first proposed they denounced it as a step toward confiscation; now the biggest railroad men frankly declare it is the best thing that ever happened to them. Railway men used to think that rebates were necessary; now nobody defends them, and likewise as to free transportation. All the big systems are preaching the "safety first" propaganda, and spending their money freely to make it effective. And now comes another long jump forward—railway employees must be courteous to patrons.

Here is an order just issued to all employees of the Union Pacific Railroad Company by its general manager:

Uniform courtesy on the part of employees who come in contact with patrons of a railroad is not only a valuable asset of a company, but is one of the most effective means of advertising today.

From the standpoint of a courteous employee, there should be no such thing as a foolish question; no question is foolish because they want information or to be reassured on matters that may be doubtful.

All questions should be answered willingly, courteously, and specifically, no matter what is asked, or how often, reply should be made fully and cheerfully.

Special attention should be given by trainmen to the aged, women and children traveling unattended, and those not accustomed to traveling.

The general public forms its opinion of the company by the treatment it receives from employees; a courteous employee makes friends for himself and the company.

Courtesy to patrons is essential; they appreciate and remember it.

Be courteous at all times and make friends for the railroad, never permitting a patron to leave dissatisfied.

It is perfectly safe to say that a railway executive who, ten years ago, would have taken the position that "from the standpoint of a courteous employee there should be no such thing as a foolish question," would have been regarded by the company as mildly insane and discharged. Who, in the good old days, ever managed to get an answer, and, least of all, a courteous answer, from a brakeman, or a station employee, or often even from a conductor? The first evidence of fitness in a railway employee was to treat the mere passenger with the most insulting roughness possible. But times have changed.

Nobody pretends that the railroads thoroughly enjoy every phase of the castigation they have been getting from state and Federal governments and the public all these years, or that all of it was deserved; but it certainly has had beneficial effects. They are learning politeness, and fair dealing, and after awhile, perhaps, a whole year will pass without a single exposure of wholesale grafting, like the New Haven and Frisco cases.

THE SHORT BALLOT

THE National Short Ballot Organization, formed in New York several years ago, with Woodrow Wilson as president, has reason to be proud of the progress of the movement it advocates, the nature of which is indicated by its name. The Short Ballot organization believes that some of our worst political evils are traceable to the long and complicated ballot used in most cities and states. The "blanket ballot" confuses the voter and renders an intelligent use of the franchise almost impossible without previous study. The object of the organization is to secure the adoption of laws which, by making many subordinate officers appointive instead of elective, will simplify the ballot.

This principle has been enforced in the platform of political parties in seven states, and has been enacted into law in several others. For instance, California has recently removed from the elective list the state printer, clerk of the Supreme Court and three railroad commissioners. Iowa has removed the clerk of the Supreme Court, reporter of the Supreme Court, and superintendent of public instruction. Ohio has got rid of the elective clerk of Supreme Court, state dairy and food commissioner and board of public works. In New York laws have been passed which transfer to the appointive lists several minor state officers who formerly were elected. In Los Angeles county the same thing was done with thirteen elective officers. In Cleveland and Toledo voters in municipal elections vote for only two candidates, those for mayor and alderman from the wards.

In Colorado Springs the attainment of this reform was one of the results of the adoption of the charter form of government. Now in an election we vote only for three candidates—one for mayor and two for councilmen—and in alternate elections only for the two councilmen. But before the charter became effective we voted for mayor, councilman, city clerk, auditor, treasurer, attorney and several other subordinate officials whose places are now filled by appointment.

Consider how the application of this short ballot system to general elections would simplify the voter's problem. Instead of a blanket ballot, considerably larger than a newspaper page, filled with column after column of names, most of which are unknown and meaningless to the average citizen, there would be a small ballot, the size of a letterhead, bearing only the names of the nominees for the more important offices, such as governor, senator, congressman and legislators. The subordinate state offices, such as secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, etc., which, after all, are merely clerkships, would be filled by appointment.

The general application of this system would eliminate some of the worst political evils now existing. And it is gratifying to note that it is steadily growing in favor.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE

IT IS hard to imagine the peace-loving and pipe-smoking German transformed into a war maniac. He alone appears to have two distinct personalities, not unlike Stevenson's Jekyll and Hyde. In peace his characteristic is that of a quiet gentle person and this is especially true of the German transplanted to America where nearly all the essence of the war lust disappears. But the demon of militarism lurks in his nature, and once roused evidently gains complete control for the time being.

The British lives in peace and fights with the same insular stolidity; the Frenchman is joyous and hysterical in nearly all instances; the Belgian is quiet and determined in defense of his home or tilling his fields, but it remains for the German to present a dual personality. From a retiring disposition in time of peace he becomes a devil in battle, consumed with hatred for the enemy and love for the fatherland.

THE INTERNATIONAL TOPIC

UNDOUBTEDLY the war is the one prevailing topic of the times. The subject, all-embracing and huge, is perhaps the greatest since the birth of Christ, and almost inexhaustible with all its ramifications. The component parts, what are they? Motives, ideas, ideals, premises, causes, results; all the way from Von Bernhardi's "Germany and the Next War," which tries to be a justification of battle on the ground of progress and Christianity, to the policy of the Russians and English and the courageous stand of the Belgians on neutral ground.

We are told by President Wilson to be neutral. Yet all of us with any minds of our own must have a decided opinion of the rights and wrongs of the matter. Therefore individual neutrality is impossible. As a nation we should, and do, try to stand on the line of demarcation between favoritism and rank disapproval.

A topic of conversation has been supplied for years to come and the close of the war with the changing map, treaties, disputes, compromises and other accessories to peace will fill a large reservoir with intellectual fish to be baited and caught by our logicians and philosophers.

ANOTHER WORD ON DOGS

To the Editor of The Gazette:
 A few facts from the Philadelphia S. P. C. A. file are interesting as well as enlightening to Colorado Springs and its board of health. Would that it could lift the inhabitants out of their lethargy and move them to take some action to protect man's best friend. An article is made to the press by the society on the wicked publication of the following statements:
 "In the first place, people who do not know dogs do not seem to realize that they are quite as subject to illness as are humans. A mad-dog scare once started every dog that shows signs of illness is at once seized and cruelly treated by the brutal and ignorant, often he is chased until, frantic with fright and suffering, he snaps and bites. Then he becomes the subject of a mad-dog story. Had the poor animal suffering from worms, distemper or other ill been properly and kindly treated, it would not have resorted to its only means of defense, and nervous people would not have been distracted over fears of hydrophobia."
 There is upon record a great mass of testimony from physicians asserting the extreme rarity of such a disease. Dr. Matthew Woods, who searched for 20 years for a cure, says that he never saw hydrophobia in man or animal. He offered $100 for a patient, but the reward has never been claimed. He also says that he has never found a physician who has seen hydrophobia in man or dog. Dr. Spitzka, professor of medical jurisprudence and of the anatomy and physiology of the nervous system in the New York Post-Graduate School of Medicine and president of the New York Neurological society, writes:

 "Much of the observation of suspicious dogs is made through optics disturbed by fear and by persons incompetent to interpret what they see or observe."
 Dr. Spitzka made every effort to secure observation of rabies, but in eight years had not found a case. In one London hospital 2,668 persons were bitten by angry dogs. None developed hydrophobia. In another, 4,000 patients had been bitten by "supposed" mad dogs and no case of hydrophobia developed.

Dr. Dulles of the University of Pennsylvania was appointed by the state to investigate rabies. After investigating every reported case in the United States for 16 years, he failed to find one conclusively proven case.
 In the record of all the diseases which have occurred at the Pennsylvania hospital in 140 years, only two cases were even supposed to be hydrophobia. "A DOG FRIEND."

GERMANY AND HER TWO SPECTRES

E. E. Martin, in Life.
 Can't the Russian spectre be somehow laid for Germany? She believes, and has believed for generations, that in due time the Russian bear is coming out of the woods to eat her up. She seems to feel that any nation that can, will take what is here the first chance, and that the only safety for her is to keep in training and go armed to the eyebrows. But the only nation she sees in Europe growing bigger than she is is Russia, and so she fears Russia. There is much in her history to justify such feelings, but in crediting all nations with the same designs on her that she has on them, she may be out of calculation. Germans in their business relations seem to be average honest, but Germany in her national or governmental policy is a highwayman. She tries to get out Mark Twain's commandment: "Do unto others what you think they are going to do unto you, and do it first."
 There is no safety or peace for anybody, man or nation, who shapes his course by that commandment. No doubt the reason why Germany is so afraid of Russia is that she expects from Russia the sort of rapacious assault that she would make on Russia if she were Russia and Russia Germany. She does not see that it is not in Russia to behave like Germany. She does not see that it is not in any other modern nation to behave like Germany. She does not understand any people but Germans. She sees two black spectres, Russia and England, and behold, in her hate and dread of them, instead of letting them stand one another off, she has managed to bring them both down on her at once.
 It is true that nations have not been much used to respect the eighth commandment, but it is also true that history is full of wars resulting, like this present one, from disregard of it. Germany cannot have history in justification of her robber inclinations. Times have changed. War is inconceivably more fatal and destructive than it ever was before, on any large scale it is played out, and that means that among the nations the profession of robber is becoming obsolete, and that any nation that attempts to follow it is going to be chased by the entire police of the world.

Germany must give up her robber Rhine-baron ideal. She must learn to be an honest nation and help to keep the other nations honest, and act in with them to form a confederation strong enough to keep in check all unbridled and predatory ambitions. Then she need not be afraid of any bear coming out of the woods, or any sea monster coming out of the sea, to destroy her. Both from her and for her the world must be made safe.

REAL TEMPERANCE PROGRESS

From the Chicago Herald.
 What has become of the "Christmas drunkard"? What has become of the employer who was in the habit of giving his employees bottles of festive spirits for Christmas gifts? What has become of the same employer and others who not only condoned but encouraged the offense of drunkenness upon the part of their employees on Christmas and other holidays?

These practices are almost extinct. These practices are almost obsolete. American holidays are becoming less and less excuses for vicious extravagance. We are none the less merry on Christmas, but we are measurably soberer. Industry today demands temperance, and holidays are made for exceptions to the rule.

The prohibition question may be in part responsible for this. In all probability its influence has helped the general awakening of men to the fact that temperance is never a virtue and always a drawback. Whether our old drink bill is wrong or not, the fact remains that, as a nation, we are becoming soberer as individuals we drink less intoxicants on the average.

This is an unusually good sign. It indicates distinct progress in the world, despite its apparent retrogression just now. It shows that education is making advances; that men are learning the art of abusing anything; in short, that they are becoming more temperate, and as temperance is the use of liquor is gaining adherents, there is excellent reason for believing that temperance in other directions is gaining also.

This is manifest in the matter of eating. Gluttony is far less common than formerly. Our Christmas and other holiday feasts never last, nowadays, five or six hours, all devoted to intemperate stuffing of both food and liquor. We are coming to have more respect for our bodies, and as we do so we shall undoubtedly also have greater respect for our spiritual selves.

In short, there is gaining in mastery over self in self-control, and this more than ought else, indicates substantial world progress.

BRAVERY OF THE JEW

From Jettison.
 Never again will the bravery of the Jews be questioned. The European war has found them at the front on many a battlefield, fighting shoulder to shoulder with their compatriots among the various belligerents. Discussing at a meeting of the Jews in New York city the topic, "The Jew as a Citizen of the Country of His Domile," Dr. Henry M. Leipsziger declared that from all of the countries involved in the conflict came reports that the Jews were rallying to the support of the country of their adoption, and were conducting themselves with heroism. Jews in the German army have received the Iron Cross, and in the Russian army have won distinction. The ability of the Jews to remain a distinct people and yet to support loyally the country of their birth or adoption is one of the marvels of history.

THE BRONTOSAURUS

The Brontosaurus was an animal of extraordinary size which flourished in the early Jurassic period, long before Joe Cannon was in congress.

We have nothing like the brontosaurus in these days, which is something to be thankful about. He was the most animal that has ever been collected together in one hide. He was a procession all by himself, and when he went out in the cool of the morning to eat up a meadow and lunched along later in the day he was a procession. He was half a minute passing, given point.

The brontosaurus belonged to the Dinosaur family. This was one of the very earliest families on earth, but it behaved much better about it than some of our later families do and never got unduly proud of it. The Dinosaur have heads from one to two yards long and completely equipped with teeth. They had long necks, short fore legs and large, substantial hind legs upon which they could rise when necessary and peer over a small foothill in search of friend or foe. They had toes equipped with sharp claws and nothing was more disagreeable in the world's earlier periods than to be clawed by a peevish brontosaurus. It was like getting stabbed with the business end of a steam shovel.

The Dinosaur sometimes attained a length of 55 feet and had a fleshy tail as long as a box car. Some dinosaurs were armored with thick plates and some were merely protected cuirasses. Some dinosaurs were carnivorous, living on meat and other small fry while others were herbivorous and could make a light meal off a few trees and a prehistoric haystack washed down with a duck pond.

The brontosaurus was herbivorous, and so far as is known never bit a man during its career. However, we should be glad that the brontosaurus moved on into the stratified shale beds of eternity before society got any well organized. While we could do nothing to keep this gentle giant from eating and to teach him simple tricks he would always cause a certain amount of apprehension and discomfort. Think of going into a blackberry patch to harvest the crop and of getting engulfed by a voracious brontosaurus who wanted only a square meal and would be surprised and exasperated to find that he had swallowed a leading citizen along with it.

ONE ROAD TO CONTENTMENT

BY RUTH CAMERON

"An ill-favored thing, sir, but mine own, As You Like It."
 What a glimmer of possession does cast over the humblest object!

A neighbor of mine who has long planned to build a home which was to contain many unusually attractive features has finally bought a house which she was able to get at a great bargain. It is not at all the sort of thing she planned, and when I saw it I thought how disappointed she must be. I expressed my sympathy with her disappointment to a mutual friend, who had visited her in her new home and she promptly retorted:

"But she isn't the least bit disappointed. She's the kind of person who takes what she can get and likes it because it's hers."

And when I also visited her I found it true.
 "I like a thing because it's mine is a very practical way to be happy."
 If you cannot actually obtain happiness by it, it is this woman's certainty that you can at least accomplish the next best thing—you can convince others that you are happy.

A very pretty, talented girl of whom better things were expected, married a distinctly commonplace man. At least that was what everyone thought at the time.

"Throwing Them Off the Scat."
 Now they no longer know what to think. For his wife never misses an opportunity to tell people how clever he is. Eventually she will probably succeed in convincing people that she did make a brilliant match after all.

To praise and admire anybody on whom the lustre of one's patronage falls is another form of this determined self-satisfaction. I know a woman who, because of her reduced means, was obliged to patronize a cheap tailor. Instead of keeping silent about this fact or appearing to regret it, she at once began to praise him to the skies. She was always saying how smooth his lines were, how beautifully he finished things and what surprisingly good taste he had. The result was both amusing and pathetic in that she made him so popular that he went up on his price and she could no longer afford to patronize him. She is now equally enthusiastic about another tailor who has the distinction of her patronage.

After all, such satisfaction even if it springs from no noble source is better than the dissatisfaction of the type of person who is never satisfied with anything.

If you can't get what you like, then learn to like what you can get is a very practical philosophy. And even if you only pretend to like it at first, this pretense is apt to lead on your real feelings and make you more content than you would otherwise be.

PELLAGRA—II.

Although the public health service concerning itself with the problems of public health, in the main it can never keep closely within its field, nor keep wholly out of other fields. The fields of public health, personal hygiene, and curative medicine constantly overflow one into the other.

Along with Treldberger's recommendations of a certain diet list for those who would avoid pellagra, there goes a detailed diet list for those who have the disease and would be cured. He says:

"The patient should be given and urged to take (if necessary, but fed) an abundance of fresh milk, eggs, fresh lean meat, beans and peas (fresh and dried, not milk alone, or in substitution with butter milk), should be given freely. An adult should be urged to take not less than a pint and a half to two pints in 24 hours."

"Eggs—Fresh eggs should be allowed freely. In addition to the milk and meat, four eggs a day, in certain of the severer forms it may be necessary to give the eggs in the form of albumin water."

"MEAT—The meat should be fresh, lean meat. Whether all fresh meats are equally valuable in treatment we do not know; future studies will have to determine this. Our experience has been with beef alone. This may be served as scraped beef, as a roast, or as steak. Where mastication is painful, meat juice may be given instead. An adult should be urged to take at least half a pound of lean meat a day in addition to the milk, eggs and legumes. It may be necessary in some instances to work up gradually to the point where those quantities can be taken."

"LEGUMES—We have been much impressed with the favorable results following the use of beans and peas alone. The beans, as adrian should be fresh or dried, not canned, be prepared pea or bean soup freely. In addition and may be given with the soup the to or in alternation with the soup the beans or peas should be served and eaten in any one of the other well known forms."

In cases presenting only moderate or no gastro-intestinal symptoms there may be added in restricted amounts oatmeal, rice and barley as cereals, potatoes and onions as fresh vegetables, fresh or dried (not canned) fruits and wheat or rye bread or biscuits."

DIABETES AND CAUSE.
 M. A. F. writes: "Will you kindly advise the real cause of diabetes and the best course to pursue to cure same? Am a middle aged woman of formerly stout and healthy constitution."

REPLY.
 1. Diabetes may be caused by over-eating—eating more than the liver can handle. It may also be caused by a diseased pancreas or tumor of the brain.

2. The diet is the most important thing to be considered in treating a case of diabetes. The food should be nourishing and at the same time as free from carbohydrates—sugars and starches—as possible. Try the following:

BREAKFAST.
 Four prunes cooked without sugar. Fresh bran muffins, with plenty of butter. Oatmeal with lots of cream. Coffee.

LUNCH.
 Poached egg on toasted bran muffin, buttered. Chicken (dressed) and a bit of cheese or some fresh fruit.

DINNER.
 Any meat except liver. Fish of all kinds. Asparagus, green beans, lettuce, radishes, olives, celery, tomatoes. Desserts—custards made with very rich milk, strawberries, fresh. Sour orange and grapefruit. Fresh peach cobbler, batter made with gluten flour. Cheese, any kind.

Nuts, any kind except chestnuts and often peanuts are excluded. A diabetic should never allow himself to get ravenously hungry. This is one of the great dangers that he faces, as it may cause him to overeat, eat the wrong food, or be about as bad as the other. If a diabetic feels the need of food between meals he can with safety take an egg with all the cream in it, or an orange or cup custard. It is a good plan to make up custards, baked little brown bowls (individual) and keep on hand to eat between meals when hungry. A glass of buttermilk or nuts will sometimes relieve a sense of hunger. A diabetic should, by all means, have medical advice.

MANUFACTURERS DON'T WANT MARK OF MADE IN AMERICA

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 6.—The "made in America" exhibit, to have been held in Carnegie institute here, has been canceled by the Art society of Pittsburgh, its sponsor, because it was declared American manufacturers feared to let the country know their wares were made in the United States. The small number of articles presented for exhibition caused the society to consider the exhibition brought to the attention of the manufacturer the admission that he did not wish the fact spread abroad that his products were not made in Europe because of the "popular" thoughtless impression that European manufacturers were superior. Other manufacturers are said to have taken the same view.

POISON CAUSED DEATH OF MRS. ALICE RONALDS

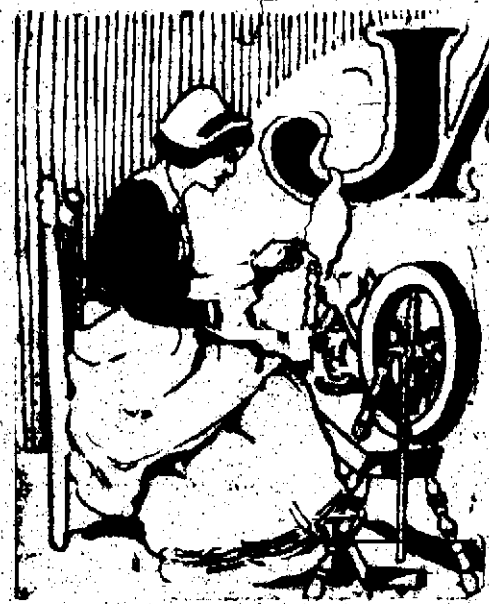

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Chemical determination that poison caused the death of Mrs. Alice Ronalds (Friday in her home at Mattison, Ill.) was announced today in the coroner's jury report. Mrs. Ronalds was found unconscious and died without making a statement.

REPLY.
 The trouble with your nails is probably of no consequence. The curved nails of heart disease, more prominent in advanced long disease, are a other tailor who has the distinction of her patronage.

After all, such satisfaction even if it springs from no noble source is better than the dissatisfaction of the type of person who is never satisfied with anything.

If you can't get what you like, then learn to like what you can get is a very practical philosophy. And even if you only pretend to like it at first, this pretense is apt to lead on your real feelings and make you more content than you would otherwise be.

13 MEDALS AWARDED SOLDIERS FOR BRAVERY

Secretary Daniels Makes Presentation for Deeds of Valor at Vera Cruz

irritates the membranes of the throat, bronchial tubes and the lungs. Brown's Bronchial Troches are invaluable for the relief of coughs and hoarseness. Guaranteed harmless and free from all opiates—in use over 60 years. Sold by all druggists—25c, 50c and $1.00 packages.

Vera Cruz, were presented medals of honor by Secretary Daniels today on the deck of the battleship Florida at the Brooklyn Navy yard. Rear Admiral Fletcher, now commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, who commanded the American naval forces at Vera Cruz, and other high officers of the navy participated in the formal ceremony.

Secretary Daniels also read a long list carrying names of officers, headed by Rear Admiral Fletcher, and blue-jackets and marines who had received special mention for heroism at Vera Cruz. Before presenting the medals, Secretary Daniels referred to the battle of Vera Cruz and declared that the outstanding naval event of the last year was the courage, sacrifice and self-restraint displayed by the officers and men of the navy and marine corps at that time.

"In answering the call of their country," said the secretary, "19 men, sailors and marines, won the distinction and glory of death on the field of battle. America, then mourning her loss, was like Niobe 'all tears'."

The secretary spoke of the honors paid these men at the time their bodies

CURED HIS RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors and my only hope of a cure was an operation. Trovess did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 3834 Marquette Avenue, Minneapolis, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured; you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Austrian Force Near Przemysl Annihilated

PETROGRAD, Jan. 6.—The Novoe Vremya says that a recent battle, in the Austrian garrison which is defending Przemysl, the fate of which is not given, resulted in the complete annihilation of the Austrian force.

The battle was preceded by extensive cavalry reconnaissance. Then Austrian infantry advanced in force in the direction of a forest near the city. The Russians opened fire, but the Austrians rushed forward and gained the cover of the woods. They continued to push forward and the Russians permitted them to advance close to their positions before making a serious effort to halt them. With the fighting thus at close range, the Russians opened up a terrific fire from rifles and machine guns.

It is said that not one of the force which made the advance remained in the fortress, those who were not killed or

MAN KILLS WIFE, BOARDER AND SELF; NO CAUSE KNOWN

AKRON, O., Jan. 6.—Charles W. Hislop, 28, a railroad employe, today shot and killed his wife, shot Joseph Schrader, a boarder at the same house, and then turned the revolver on himself, dying instantly. Schrader is not expected to live. Boarders at the home were unable to assign any cause for the shooting. Hislop is said to have fired first several shots at his wife in their own room, none taking effect. She then sought refuge in Schrader's room, but was pursued by her husband and the fatal shooting followed. Boarders found all three bodies lying on the floor of the room.

FEDERAL TROOPS IN COAL FIELDS LEAVING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Troops of the United States army, which were sent to the coal fields of West Virginia, are today returning to their home stations. The troops, which were sent to the coal fields to maintain order and to protect the coal fields from the ravages of the war, are now being disbanded.

The Less Profanity, the Better Golf. Taft Views of Prominent Men on Scotch Game

By WILLIAM H. EVANS
(On the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

The ex-president, William H. Taft, and other prominent men, all of them golfers, have very kindly contributed to a symposium of golf, and their contributions will doubtless be read with interest. Mr. Taft, while president of the United States, was kind enough a few years ago to send me a contribution concerning the need of municipal links in our large cities, parks, and today's contribution is his second.

Here it is:

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 13, 1914.

My Dear Sir:—I have your letter of December 7. I think golf is one of the greatest games for the promotion of the health of men over 40 that I know of. It is an admirable form of exercise, it is consistent with social judgment, it trains one in self-restraint, it introduces one to nature in its most attractive form, and it has no bad results except that in the outer, it may tempt to profanity. This, however, is of short duration with a man of any sense, because he finds that the less he resorts to profanity and impropriety, the better his score.

Sincerely yours,
WM. H. TAFT.

Here is mine:

I am the spirit of golf.
I go into the hearts of men and call them into the open country.
I invite them with May winds and the scent of flowers and the song of birds and lure them away from their workaday world.
I walk with them over green fields and under smiling skies.
I sweep away the mental cobwebs and give instead peace and contentment.
I restore throbbing nerves and am a panacea for all cares and worries.
I appeal alike to the old and young, to the strong and weak.
Presidents and rulers, poets and peasants, the high and low are my devotees.
I neither beg nor sell, lend nor borrow, I receive nothing and give all.
I test men's souls and try their tempers, and I bring forth the best in all.
A half-million of the American people are my willing slaves.
And men rise up and call me blessed.
Golf makes him a well man.

Walter J. Travis is a man who took up golf in middle age. He has three been the American amateur champion, and is the only American who ever won the amateur championship of Great Britain. Here is his message.

You ask for a brief eulogy of golf. Ordinarily, I never say my word. A year ago at this time, however, I was a mighty sick man. In bed for three weeks, and with three doctors. Today, on the threshold of 55, I am as good as new. Thanks to golf, I can take down as well as in. Without golf, there would have been little left over for me.

Very faithfully yours,
W. J. TRAVIS.

No person in this country has done more to simplify handicapping than Leighton Calkins, and his system is now used not only by the United States Golf association, but by every club in the country. He is a former secretary of the Metropolitan Golf association, a former committee member of the United States Golf association, and an ex-president of the New Jersey Golf association. Here is what he says.

The Charm of Golf.

What is it, and why do we not speak of it in connection with any other game? We know that we mean when we speak of the charm of a woman, which, nevertheless, is quite inappreciable.

or necessity definition. It is so, also, with golf. There is a charm which admits adequate description, but invites it. In both cases the difficulty is that this charm is so varied that there is no end to it. And it is elusive. Now it is here, now it is there. And then again it is quite different from what it has seemed to be, and we really do not know what it is after all. But I think it is when we are playing a course for the first time that we most sense the delight of a game which is as old as the hills, and as new as it lends us, through them and beyond, where we have never been before. The charm of golf is in nature.

LEIGHTON CALKINS.

He Admits He's Not a Golfer.

John A. Hoadler, secretary of the National Baseball league, is an enthusiastic golfer who plays around several times in the summer, which is mighty good golf. Here is his contribution.

Mr. Dear Evans:—It is my fervent desire that I am not a golfer. Having played at it but four years, I am free to confess that I now know nothing of the real game of golf. Yours,

JOHN A. HOADLER.

Next come three disappointments. President Wilson is the second president who plays golf, and, as with Mr. Taft, it is his chief recreation. He has never, unlike his predecessor, gone on record about the game, and, unfortunately, my note to him reached him about the time he was preparing his message to congress. His secretary writes as follows:

My Dear Mr. Evans:—The president regrets that the pressure of business prevents him at this time from replying to your inquiry about golf.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH TIMULITY.

Ex-President Roosevelt has never, to my knowledge, played golf, so that I hardly expected to get a favorable reply. This is the letter from his secretary:

My Dear Mr. Evans:—Mr. Roosevelt does not play golf, and so is unable to comply with your request contained in your letter of December 7.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN W. MCGRAW.

The third and last secretary to accept Turner's president of the National Baseball league, Mr. Turner is a golfer and plays regularly during the season.

Governor Turner is, indeed, sorry he cannot comply with your request. He is very busy closing up the affairs of his administration. Otherwise, he would be glad to comply with your request. Perhaps some time in the near future he will do so.

Respectfully yours,
W. H. GATHER.

Perhaps no happier tribute was ever paid to golf than that by E. R. Fournier, the widely known Chicago banker, several years ago. It follows:

It is a science, the study of a lifetime, in which you may exhaust yourself, but never your subject. It is a contest, a duel, a duel, calling for courage, skill, strategy, and self-control. It is a test of temper, a trial of honor, a rehearsal of character. It affords a chance to play the man and the gentleman.

It means going into God's outdoors, getting close to nature, fresh air, exercise, the sweeping away of mental cobwebs, genuine recreation of the tired tissues. It is a cure for an antidote to worry. It includes companionship, social contacts, social intercourse, opportunities for contentment and generosity to an opponent. It promotes not only physical health, but mental force.

LAVIN M. SCHUCH of the Philadelphia Country club and a former All-American football player, writes thus:

Master Macerlin's sake. At these

Aha! Jack Dalton, They Have You

JACK DALTON

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Jack Dalton, outfielder for the Brooklyn National league team last year, has signed a contract to play with the Buffalo Bisons, President William E. Robertson announced today.

LAJOIE TO SECOND BASE FOR TEAM OF HIS YOUTH

Purchased by Connie Mack for Philadelphia and Will Take Place Valedicated by Eddie Collins

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—Napoleon Lajoie, for 12 years second baseman and former manager of the Cleveland American league club, yesterday was released by President Charles W. Somers to the Philadelphia Athletics. Manager Connie Mack came here from Philadelphia and closed the deal. No other players were involved in the deal, Somers said.

Lajoie, in 1901, jumped from the Philadelphia National league club to the newly formed Philadelphia American league team, where he played under Connie Mack until June, 1902. On June 4, 1902, he played his first game with the Cleveland team. He was manager of the Cleveland team from 1903 to 1909, inclusive.

Mack admitted that he expected to get Lajoie at second base, a vacancy caused by the sale of Eddie Collins to the Chicago Americans.

Lajoie made his three thousandth hit in the major leagues in the last game he played with the Cleveland club on September 27, last.

This average batting record for 19 years in the major leagues was .348.

Harley of Fall River, won it in 1903, as that Boston has two national champions. Walter Hagen of Rochester captured the open title, defeating "Black" Evans by a single stroke. Jim Barnes, the professional at the White Marsh Valley country club, is the western open champion. And that brings us up to the year's work in America.

New York A. C. Will Drop Out of Metropolitan

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Although the New York Athletic club's committee on athletics, at a meeting tonight adopted a resolution recommending to the board of governors that the board resign immediately from the Metropolitan Association of Amateur Athletic Unions, this drastic action may not be taken.

Later tonight the registration committee of the Metropolitan association, after a lengthy session, decided to rescind the order of suspension, announced yesterday, of five of the New York Athletic club members who, under a by-law of the club, were prevented from taking part in several swimming and diving events which were to be decided this week at an exhibition in Madison Square Garden here.

TERROR QUINT TO OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR TITLE ON FRIDAY

East Denver's Heavy Five to Play Locals at 8 in Y. M. "Gym"

Tomorrow night the Terrors, holders of the state basketball title for the last two years, will start their campaign for another notch tomorrow night, when they meet the East Denver high school team, already picked in Denver for northern honors. The Terrors have been working like young demons during the last two weeks and despite the fact that the team of last year was shattered by graduation of four members, "Captain Thompson of this year's quint, is the only veteran. The members of the Terror five are Barnes, Shippee and Johnson, forwards; Simpson, center, and Captain Thompson and F. Thompson, guards. Coach Erps is again directing the destinies of the team in his efficient way.

JOHN FIKE, GRIDIRON STAR, CHAPLAIN OF THE SENATE

Denver Player and Coach of South's Championship Team Gets Ministerial Position

DENVER, Jan. 6.—The Rev. John W. Fike, all-Colorado gridiron while a member of the University of Denver football eleven, and coach of the South Denver high school squad for the past three years, has been nominated for chaplain of the senate by the committee on patronage. The appointment was immediately confirmed by the senate.

The announcement came as a surprise to Fike, who was not even a candidate. Nine ministers had applied for the place and Fike's name was suggested when no agreement could be reached on the others.

The rugged athlete came to Denver to study for the ministry and upon his graduation was named pastor of the Clough Memorial, a place which he held for two years. He is now without charge, time having been granted him to continue his studies.

He is probably the youngest chaplain in the history of the state senate, but if his past record in pulpit and on the gridiron count for anything, he will fill the place well.

Welsh Matched for Bout With Griffith

AKRON, O., Jan. 6.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, was today matched to meet Johnny Griffiths, holder of the Australian title, in a 12-round bout here February 1. Griffiths will be required to make 135 pounds at 6 o'clock.

Ray Caldwell Jumps Back to the Yankees

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Ray Caldwell, the pitcher for the New York Americans, who left the team last August, shortly after which it was announced that the Buffalo club of the Federal league had secured his services for next season, will rejoin the Yankees the coming spring, according to announcement by President Ban Johnson of the American league here today.

"OPEN SHOP PLAN" IS ADOPTED BY OPERATORS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 6.—Eastern Ohio coal operators at a meeting here today decided to open their mines under the "open shop plan." Striking miners who have been idle since the first of April that will be given first opportunity to fill the jobs under the scale offered by the operators.

NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The local stock market again proved its independence today by making further, though uneven, progress toward betterment, regardless of the London market, where the American list evinced greater heaviness. Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and St. Paul were the most backward features of the foreign market, but Pennsylvania and New York Central also manifested selling pressure.

Initial dealings here had all of their recent irregularity, with an abrupt decline in the first hour, early reports of the subway accident causing an all-around break in interborough issues. Gould stocks later exhibited renewed weakness: Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, preferred, and St. Louis Southwestern falling to low records.

Among the specialties, Virginia-Carolina Chemical, preferred, declined 18 points, to its minimum price of 80, with a three-point gain for the common stock.

Bethlehem Steel led the industrial division, the stock for the first time in many years passing the current quotation for United States Steel. The latter was again offered for European interests, according to report, but held steady throughout. A majority of the day's gains were in securities of secondary importance, the last closing with moderate firmness, after a further irregular decline.

Light was thrown on the recent transfer of $2,000,000 gold from the assay office by the announcement that the metal had been deposited at one of the leading national banks, to the credit of the Bank of France.

Bonds were irregular, with wide declines in some vulnerable issues. Total sales, par value, aggregated $1,825,000.

United States government bonds were unchanged on call.

CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Belief prevailed today with a majority of wheat traders that at least a temporary advance was due after the sudden big advance during the last 24 hours. According to the market averaged decidedly lower than for the preceding session, and although unsettled at the final finish, closed 1 1/2¢ to 1 3/4¢ under last night's closing. The market, too, all showed a setback—corn 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ to oats 1/2¢ and provisions 1/4¢ to 1/2¢.

Desire to realize on holdings rather than to undertake fresh commitments at present was evident from the outset in the wheat pit. Even exporters were said to be reselling in a limited way where a good profit was to be had at once, and there was difficulty in obtaining immediate ocean freight room.

Numerous rallies took place in the wheat market, but quotations here at no time succeeded in equalling yesterday's level. As a rule, country dealers, handling higher prices and millers were active buyers, but the aggregate amount taken by foreigners anywhere in the United States today was said not to exceed 50,000 bushels.

Correlation between the wheat and shipping sales were not of encouraging volume, and there were larger rural offerings.

Oats merely reflected the course of other cereals. The bulk of the trade was local.

Provisions sagged, influenced by grain and hog. Packers led the selling.

THE GERMAN ARMY'S MOVIES
From The American Boy.
The moving picture has done its part toward achieving the remarkable preparedness and efficiency which the German army has displayed. In Germany, moving pictures are widely used to instruct recruits, just as in this country large industrial concerns are beginning to make use of moving pictures to train their employees in the most efficient methods. The young German recruit receives his initial instruction from the movies, learning of such minor duties as mounting guard, making camp, bayonet drill, and acting as vedette. The scenes in the films are acted out by veterans and the example of the experienced soldier is thus always available in schooling the recruit. Moving pictures are largely used in giving instruction in special branches of the military service. Thus, the correct methods of bridge building, of constructing trenches, of erecting barricades, of laying mines and of making pontons are shown by special films. Moving pictures of the army maneuvers are also exhibited in theaters throughout the country as a means of popularizing the army.
